Best Political Speech.
To Rule the Wind.
Ladies' Queer Pets.
Wales' 7,000,000 Ton Tee.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

SECRETARY MELLON talks about business strictly as business; no thought of politics.

But his optimistic statement on business condition and future prosperity is the strongest Republican political speech that could have been made.

The strongest instinct in man is self-preservation, and most important to self-preservation is prosperity.

Blowing 150 miles an hour, a tropical hurricane swept over Porto Rico, doing $2,000,000 damage, at the same time a tornado killed 11 persons, and injured many in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Such tornadoes are more dangerous, far more frequent than earthquakes. But science can foresee a day when high winds will be under man's control.

Their cause is understood. And in days far off, perhaps 50,000 years, perhaps 500,000 years hence, when men control the earth's temperature, transferring surplus heat from the equator to the poles, the wind will no more blow "where it listeth," but where man says that it shall blow, and at a speed prescribed by him.

There is nothing fanciful about that.

Ladies that like queer pets to help make them conspicuous, will rejoice at news from the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Breeding Science, near Berlin. New animals produced by breeding include yellow rats, blue monkeys, and rabbits bearing chinchilla fur, almost genuine. Those rabbits will interest Los Angeles.

The learned Prof. Bauer can do marvelous things with animal life, crossing, inbreeding, etc. But he and all other biologists, with all their science could not produce one living mosquito.

Napoleon in Egypt told his soldiers that 20 centuries were looking down upon them from the top of the pyramids.

The Prince of Wales in Egypt could address no invading army, although his country fully controls and practically owns Egypt, which is more then Napoleon ever did.

The prince didn't waste his opportunity, however. He climbed the great pyramid, and from the top drove a golf ball that fell to earth, he knew not where.

The "tee" from which that ball was driven is made of 7,000,000 tons of stone, plus the labor of 100,000 men working for 20 years under the lash—a very interesting "drive."

Two young girls, acting as pickets, and arrested in the textile strike at New Bedford, were promptly expelled from the local Young Women's Christian Association.

The girls' offense was trying to help fellow workers and enable wives of workers to take better care of their children. In short, they were doing what the Founder of Christianity Himself would have done.

The amiable ladies in control of that Young Women's Christian Association should strike the word "Christian" from the name of their association, and go ahead as usual.

Another 4,000,000-share day in Wall Street. With plus signs everywhere in the list. "Collateral borrowing," euphemism for "borrowing for speculation," increased ninety-six millions for the week, and everybody thought that quite reasonable. Between 40 and 50 stocks reached their highest prices for this year.

Be careful how you sell them short, they may go higher.

"Big Steel" touched 159⅞, highest price ever. That surely interested the late Judge Gary, looking down on the steeple of Trinity Church.

Happy the stock exchange broker whose untutored mind sees everything going up, including the value of his membership One seat sold for $415,000. At that price, the 1100 exchange seats would be worth $456,500,000. You can't persuade Wall Street that prosperity isn't real.

The inevitable happens in Paris, where ladies will no longer be exhibited with nothing on.

Theatrical managers and the younger set may not know it, but the human race got tired of nakedness more than 100,000 years ago.

Paris revues are presenting young ladies dressed, or at least, covered all over with silk. Undressed ladies bore theatergoers.

Nothing could be more hideous than promiscuous nudity. Every Turkish bath proves it.

KIDNAPED AND PUT TO DEATH WITH AXE; HUNT FOR SUSPECT

Los Angeles, Sept. 15 (AP)—The story of a "murder farm," near Riverside, Cal., on which four boys met their deaths, as told by a 15-year-old prisoner at the place, was declared by the police today to have been verified.

Although none of the three bodies declared by Sanford Clark, 15, to have been buried in and near the chicken house on the ranch property could be found, detectives said the graves were located and indications found that bodies or other objects either had been removed recently or had been treated with quick lime.

A boy's head was found in one of the graves. It was believed to be the head of a decapitated body found near Puenete, Cal., last month.

Officers here questioned Cyrus George Northcott, 57, owner of the ranch, who was held as a material

JONES EIGHT UP ON T. P. PERKINS AT 23RD

By BILL GRIMES

Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, Sept. 15—Apparently a repetition of the 1911 championship, which resulted in the title going to England after Harold Hilton had defeated Fred Herreshoff in a 37-hole match at Apawamis, has been avoided for Bobby Jones, the "Emperor of Golf," had piled up an 8-hole lead over T. P. Perkins of Great Britain at the 23rd hole of the 36-hole final of the 32d annual United States amateur championship here today.

Jones is recognized as a killer and he has lived up to his reputation this week. After the 18-hole matches, during which Jones experienced far more difficulty in winning than he has over the double route, Bobby has done a terrible job on his opponents.

In the quarter finals he defeated John Beck of Great Britain, 14-13, and yesterday, in the semi-finals, ran rough-shod over Phillips Finlay of Sandy Burr, taking a 13-12 decision. Drawn in the finals against Perkins, indications are that he will duplicate his performances of the two previous rounds.

There is no question that Perkins

COUNCIL HEARS PLAN TO END MILL STRIKE

Lenox, Sept. 15—Supplementing his welcome announcement that the end of the New Bedford textile strike is in sight, President Edward Drake of the New Bedford Chamber of Commerce today outlined what he considered to be the solution of the industrial problem in his city.

At this morning's session of the New England Council he stressed the importance of some fundamental changes in the assignment of labor's tasks to meet modern conditions, and declared that New Bedford's textile plants should survive, while permitting the operative, eventually, to receive as much and possibly more than before.

INSPECTOR BURKE DIES

Recognized as one of the most capable detectives in the Boston police department, and feared by criminals throughout the country, Inspector Michael J. Burke died suddenly today while exercising in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Union on Boylston st.

Michael Burke

Assistants of the gymnasium rushed to his side as he collapsed and applied first-aid treatment. He failed to rally, however, and he hurriedly taken to the Haymarket Relief Station, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Inspector Burke was 53 years old and had been a member of the police department in Boston for 27 years. He was appointed a reserve officer August 7, 1901, but his abilities were early recognized and on April 15, 1902, he was made a patrolman. Further reward for good service came in May, 1913, in promotion to sergeant, and in March, 1919, he was given the rank of inspector.

He figured prominently in some of Boston's most celebrated criminal cases and his reputation as sleuth extended from coast to coast.

He is survived by his widow and one child. They reside at 15 Atkins st., Brighton.

HUGE BELLANCA PLANE TUNES UP FOR HOP OVER ATLANTIC FROM MAINE

Old Orchard, Me., Sept. 15—The Bellanca sesquiplane Roma will hop off on its transatlantic flight to Rome tomorrow morning.

This was virtually decided this afternoon when word was received from New York that Peter Bonelli, navigator and radio operator of the plane, was speeding to Old Orchard to join the other three members of the Roma's crew tonight.

Weather reports from American and foreign bureaus state that favorable flight conditions will prevail for the next 48 hours, and Flight Commander Casare Sabelli intends to avail himself of the opportunity, he declared.

He displayed keen disappointment at not being able to take off today.

"Regardless of the weather here, we w'll hop tomorrow," said Roger Williams, co-pilot of the ship.

Impatient to be gone on the great adventure, the crew of four intrepid airmen are champing at the bit.

Not the least impatient is Comdr. Sabelli, who, with his co-pilot Williams, will be at the controls during

DRY LAW BIG MENACE TO U. S. SAYS MRS. GUILD

Assailing prohibition as America's greatest menace, Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of former Governor Guild, spoke today at a rally at the Cohasset summer home of General and Mrs. Edward L. Logan.

She introduced Senator Walsh as the principal speaker and made a strong plea for his election.

Referring to a radio talk two years ago in which she urged the election of Mr. Walsh to the Senate because of his record as governor and his opposition to prohibition, she said:

"At that time it seemed to me that prohibition was the greatest menace to our liberty, and since the menace grows and grows.

"It is dangerous to our young people—as dangerous to the girls as to the boys."

Flaying men and women who vote dry and drink wet as hypocrites, Mrs. Guild said:

"I want to say that in Governor Smith of New York we have a fine example of courage. He has made a splendid chief executive of that State, and I feel deeply that he is the man to take the responsibility of the great office of President and to carry on reforms so much needed."

Mrs. Guild also took occasion to refer to the political life of her late husband while governor of Massachusetts.

tensive damage as at San Juan, on the north coast, the message showed the hurricane caused a loss of life as well as of property on the south coast.

Low-lying parts of Ponce were inundated, the message said. Large numbers of frame houses were demolished. Electric light, telegraph and telephone systems were completely disorganized.

COFFEE CROP RUINED.

As far as could be ascertained with the meager land line communications available, the coffee crop, said to be the best in ten years, and already sold in European markets, was ruined. Growing sugar cane was flattened, but it is believed may recover.

Trees over this entire section were blown down, many of them obstructing roads and hindering traffic. Large gangs are working today to clear the roads, and it was thought possible that automobiles will be able to get through soon to San Juan, where thousands are homeless as a result of the hurricane.

Railroads have stopped traffic, unable to tell when they would resume. It is not thought telegraph lines to San Juan will be opened before early next week.

Ponce experienced the first of the storm at 11 a. m. Thursday, when the wind started blowing at 60 miles an hour. From 3 until 5 p. m. there was dead calm as the center of the hurricane passed over the city. From 5 p. m. until 5 a. m. Friday, morning winds variable in direction with an estimated force of 60 miles an hour ravaged the city and surrounding country.

SHIP DRIVEN ASHORE.

The Bull Line freighter Lillian was driven ashore yesterday at Porto Plata, Santo Domingo, the steamship company was advised today. She left New York Sept. 1 with a general cargo for Santo Domingan ports.

Two ships of the same line had not been accounted for up to noon. They are the freighter Governor John Lind, in service between Baltimore and Porto Rican ports, and the Catherine, a small inter-island passenger carrier plying between Santo Domingo and San Juan.

None of the Porto Rico line's vessels was damaged in the storm. The liner Ponce, due at San Juan last Thursday from New York, changed her course to avoid the hurricane. A radio message from the ship reported "all well" and said the captain expected to reach San Juan last night.

A plea for assistance to suffers in Porto Rico was received by cable today by the department of missions of the Episcopal Church from Bishop Ferrando at Quebrada Limon, near Ponce.

"Typhoon has caused great damage here," the cable read. "Summer camp has been destroyed. Mission building badly damaged. There is much distress. Can any assistance be rendered?"

A cabled request was sent Bishop Ferrando for information of Bishop Colmore, stationed at San Juan, from whom nothing has been heard. Church officials here were not certain that Bishop Colmore was in San Juan when the storm broke.

Byrd's Polar Ship Near Disaster in Hurricane

San Francisco, Sept. 15 (AP)—A radio dispatch from the City of New York, supply ship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, to the San Francisco Examiner today said the vessel narrowly escaped disaster in the hurricane that swept the region of the West Indies yesterday.

The City of New York, due in Panama today, radioed that she had been barely able to keep the storm behind her, but had come through unscathed.

Porto Rican Capital Fears Famine and Plague

stalked through the streets here today, adding terror to the plight of tens of thousands made homeless by the worst tropical storm ever suffered by Porto Rico.

Continued torrential rains are spoiling food that remained after the hurricane's visitation. In addition, the water supply of the city is badly disorganized and in some sections not functioning at all.

It is feared these conditions may cause disease epidemics.

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP) — Weather bureau computations had the hurricane which devastated Porto Rico passing today over the outer fringe of the Bahamas.

The American Red Cross today awaited relief recommendations from its chapter at San Juan before shipping supplies. Meanwhile, officials here expressed confidence that the San Juan chapter, experienced in meeting such emergencies, was filling the immediate needs of the people.

JOSEPH GILLIS TAKES BRIDE IN MEDFORD

St. Joseph's church in Medford was the scene today of one of the prettiest weddings of the season, when Miss Viola Margaret Chisholm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chisholm of 66 Bradlee rd., Medford, became the bride of Joseph Harold Gillis of Boston.

Officiating at the colorful ceremony was the Rt. Rev. Dennis O'Brien and assisting at the nuptial mass were the Rev. John McMahon of Wellesley and Rev. Joseph Howes of St. Joseph's.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers and thronged with guests and friends of the young couple. The single wedding ring service was used.

The bride was given away by her father and was attended by Miss Catherine Powell of Lancaster, N. H., as bridesmaid. John E. Chisholm, brother of the bride, was best man.

The ushers were Ernest J. Chisholm, James Cresswell, Robert J. Gillis, Jr., and Paul O'Brien. Mrs. Harold D. Chisholm, sister-in-law of the bride, and Harry C. O'Brien were soloists, with Miss C. Simmonds presiding at the organ.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white crepe meteor, trimmed with old lace and brilliants, and a veil of hand-made lace from Paris, arranged with orange blossoms and pearls. She carried a bouquet of roses and lillies of the valley. Her bridesmaid wore pink crepe trimmed with tulle, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Following the church service a reception was held at the home of the bride, attended by several hundred guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillis left for New York and Washington and when they return will live at their new home, 6 Ramshead road, on the Lawrence estate in Medford. The home was the gift of the bride's father to the couple.

Mr. Gillis served overseas in the Great War in the 101st Engineers (First Corps Cadets). He is a member of the wholesale fur firm of Gillis & Gillis of Boston.

"Lonely" Army Plane ∽ Dives Into Harbor

AIRPLANE CRASH AT HUB BASE

Army Vought plane submerged in bay after Lieut. Robert L. O'Brien, State inspector of aviation, had been forced down in the craft by a broken gas line. Enlisted men at the airport succeeded in rescuing the plane by means of motor boats. The wrecked plane was the favorite of Lieut. R. E. Cobb. When Lieut. witness. A coastwise hunt has been ordered for Northcott's 21-year-old son, Etewart Gordon Northcott, and his mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott.

The youth said young Northcott had become intensely interested in the William Edward Hickman kidnaping case and talked incessantly of it. A few weeks later, Clark's story ran, the two Winslow boys were kidnaped on the street in Pomona and taken to the Riverside Farm. "He kept them there tied up for a long time and hurt them," Clark said, "and then finally killed them, one with an axe."

The boys who young Clark said had been slain on the Northcott ranch were Louis and Nelson Winslow of Pomona, 12 and 9 years old, respectively, who had been sought as missing for several months; Walter Collins, 9, of Los Angeles, and the decapitated youth, who was of Mexican blood.

the long and oney fight.

This afternoon the hugh Roma plane was being tuned up at the new Scarboro airport, 12 miles from Old Orchard, and it can be flown to the beach in less than 15 minutes from the take off.

WEATHER OUTLOOK GOOD

Bonelli had been in New York conferring with weather bureau chiefs and assembling data on wind and air conditions. eBfore leaving the metropolis, he wired to Old Orchard the welcome news that all was fair ahead for the next 48 hours.

Final tests of the Roma were completed this afternoon. All that remains is Bonelli's arrival to start the ship into the uncharted airway.

For two years preparations for the Roma's great adventure have been quietly progressing. Sponsors of the flight hope to establish new records in aviation, for the longest all-water flight of 3200 miles; for the first plane to carry four passengers with a single motor; for load and distance, and other features.

The flight will be on a course due East. The first land the Roma hopes to pass is Northern Spain. From there the flight will continue to Rome, and as much farther as the gasoline supply will allow.

Bonelli will do the navigating and operate the wireless. He will endeavor to flash news of the Roma's progress to a waiting world. Dr. Pisculli will make the scientific observations.

Williams and Sabelli are married and their wives will be here to bid them Godspeed on their hazardous trip. Dr. Pisculli and Bonelli are single.

The main articles of food they will take consist of oranges and fruit juices, thermos bottles of tea and coffee, and sandwiches.

ASKS ENGLISH SPINNERS CURTAIL ON U. S. COTTON

Manchester, Eng., Sept. 15 (AP)—As a temporary short period measure to meet conditions of trade depression and over-production, the Master Cotton Spinners' Federation today asked its members to recommend that all spinners of American cotton curtail production from now until the end of October. Curtailment tantamount to a fortnight's stoppage is requested. The federation says that continuance of the present production rate can lead only to serious consequences and that "during the prolonged trade depression the American spinning section has had more than its share of burdens and sacrifice."

Prince George Tricks Boss, Joins Actresses

Santa Barbara, Cal., Sept. 15 (AP)—While Prince George, fourth son of King George, was visiting Hollywood as "Lieut. Windsor" of the British Navy, and being entertained by film stars, his commanding officer aboard the H. M. S. Durban at Santa Barbara thought the royal officer was attending a house party.

The prince asked permission to go to Hollywood, but the request was denied. Later he asked and obtained permission to attend a two-day house party at Montecito, the officer said.

But Prince George went to Hollywood, where he again met Lily Damita, French actress, whom he had known in Paris and had danced with a few days before while his ship was anchored off Monterey. He was entertained also by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

No announcement as to whether "Lieut. Windsor" would be disciplined for the Hollywood trip was made by the commanding officer of the Durban.

GIRL ATTACKED WITH IRON PIPE ON STREET

Rockland, Me., Sept. 15—A connection between the still unsolved murder of Mrs. Carolyn Welt Brown here in 1919, and the attack on Miss Phyllis Spencer, 16-year-old high school junior yesterday, was seen by the authorities today.

Mrs. Brown, a comely widow, was beaten to death by some blunt instrument, believed to be a club, while Miss Spencer was attacked by a man wielding a piece of iron pipe.

Only the fact that the girl wore her coat collar turned up in flapper style is the reason she is still alive, in the opinion of physicians. The weapon used in the attack was found nearby after the girl's assailant had fled.

Miss Spencer, who was treated for a cut on the head, said she was walking along Talbot ave., in the residential section, at midnight, on her way home from a picture show. She had just left her chum, Miss Margaret Alley, and had started up the well-lighted thoroughfare of Talbot ave. when she heard footsteps behind. The footsteps increased to a run and the girl said that without a word her assailant struck her with the pipe. She screamed and ran to the steps of Mrs. Grace Black, nearby, and collapsed.

The blow struck the young woman in the back of the head, but her coast collar lessened the force of it considerably.

Mrs. Brown, widow of Harry E. Brown, prominent Rockland business man, was struck down in the same residential district on Limerock st. She was on her way home shortly after 10 o'clock at night after visiting friends at the hotel. Her body, brutally battered, was found early the next morning in the underbrush about 60 feet from the road. The murderer was never captured.

HOW PLANES HAVE CLIPPED TIME OF OVERLAND TRIPS IN PAST 80 YEARS

Eighty years ago—back in 1848—it took from one to two years to cross the United States by stage coach or covered wagon. Later came the railroad train, which cut the time much less. Today our fastest trains make the trip in three days and nine hours. Modern motor buses have crossed the continent in five days and fourteen hours. It has remained for the airplane, however, to establish what is probably a world's record in the development of transportation. Speeding east along the sky trail two airmen recently hopped from Los Angeles to New York in 18 hours and 56 minutes, thus clipping almost two years off the time required for the journey only 80 years back. The map graphically shows how modern methods have revolutionized transcontinental travel since the days of the slow-gaited covered wagon.

JOHN COOLIDGE FIGHTS RECALL OF GUARD

New Haven, Sept. 15—John Coolidge, son of President Coolidge and $30 a week clerk in the New Haven railroad offices here, has made strenuous representations to the White House over the proposal to recall to Washington his secret service guard, Russell Wood.

For three years now "Woody," as young Coolidge calls him, has been the constant companion and friend of the young man.

The President takes the view that "John is a man now" and no longer needs the protection which the secret service has been giving to him ever since Coolidge went into the White House.

It was denied that John's guardianship was imposed in order to watch over his conduct and to keep him hard at his studies. It was said that the guardianship was mandatory. A different view now prevails at the White House.

CAMBRIDGE GIRL THIEF'S LOVE PAL HUNTED

New York, Sept. 15—New York police today are searching for a man who is believed to have been the accomplice to Miss Winifred Douglass, 24-year-old Cambridge girl, who has committed a series of amazing thefts.

The young woman is now under arrest on the charge of stealing $1400 from the Tidewater Roofing Company through an alleged falsifying of her books. Two years ago she was arrested for stealing $1500 from Jay Thorpe, Inc., an apparel shop, where she was employed.

Only a few weeks ago the girl was under arrest for stealing $57 from the Standard Oil Company, in whose offices she was employed

A series of neurotic love affairs is believed by the police to be responsible for the girl's career of crime. "Love knows no law," the police report her as declaring.

Educated in the Watertown schools the girl became a proficient bookkeeper, and after coming to New York had little difficulty in securing employment. One after another she held half a dozen jobs. From most of these she was dismissed when it was found that she was stealing money, it is alleged, but so cleverly did she handle herself and so earnest were her protestations that she meant no wrong and would make full restitution, that she escaped going to jail for her crime.

COLLEGE DEAN HITS AT MRS. WILLEBRANDT

New York, Sept. 15—Continuing its [illegible] fire upon "sectarian political [illegible]try," Democratic national hea[illegible]ters today made public a vit[illegible] attack upon Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general, for her recent appeal to a gathering of Methodist ministers at Springfield, O., to throw themselves vigorously into the campaign against Governor Smith.

"Whether they do it in the name of religion, as some do in whispers, or openly, in the name of temperance, they are in my judgment doing their utmost to undermine the pillars of our free religious institutions," said a letter from Dr. Edward T. Devine, dean of the American University graduate school, Washington, D. C., in a letter pledging his support to Governor Smith. The letter was to Frank L. Polk, former assistant Secretary of State, and now head of the Democratic College Bureau.

"As a Methodist I am vehemently opposed to the sectarian political bigotry in which some of my fellow-Methodists are indulging," Dr. Devine wrote.

"If Methodists respond to such appeals as that made recently by Mrs. Willebrandt, and if Mr. Hoover even tacitly connives at such appeals, then liberals in religion and in politics will no longer be able to feel at home either in Methodism or in Mr. Hoover's party."

PAWTUCKET PATROLMAN IN GUN BATTLE WITH THUGS

The patrolman had surprised the men and as they fled from a cracked safe they opened fire, but escaped in an automobile. The safe in the plant of the New England Machine and Electric Company was also opened. Both jobs netting less than $50.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Three Weddings of Importance Today and Another Thursday Brighten Calendar; Miss Florence Gene Ward, Daughter of the Richard Wards, Makes Her Formal Bow at Swampscott Home.

’TIS A LIVELY SOCIAL PINWHEEL THAT SPINS SO MERRILY THIS MID-SEPTEMBER AND sends off sparks innumerable. Behold the brides, especially a trio of the rapt-eyed creatures, vowing this day to "love and to cherish," and thus investing late summer with something of June's orange-blossom scented glamour. Consider the darling debutantes, all fluttered and expectant, thrilled beyond measure as they swirl away into the social vortex inseparable from a first winter. And aside from buds and brides and their absorptions, practically all society is on the wing. The summertime voyagers to foreign parts are homing. School girls and boys regretfully leave summer's carefreeness. Itinerant ones, never surfeited with travel, turn faces to new scenes or favorite old stamping grounds.

SOCIETY SHOULD DON ITS SEVEN-LEAGUE BOOTS TOday, if it would keep up with the weddings, and see Miss Helen Sumner Paine wed in Weston with Brenton Dickson; listen to nuptial organ strains as Miss Harriet Amory Bangs and William Bainbridge Frothingham meet at the altar down in Nahant, and crowd pretty little St. Paul's in Dedham as the Philip L. Hales' daughter, Miss Nancy, plights her troth with Taylor Scott Hardin of New York and Washington. Next Thursday a single bride occupies the calcium's glow. Altar lights gleam and chimes ring out for Miss Anne Wentworth, statuesque elder daughter of the Strafford Wentworths of Milton, who exchanges solemn ceremonial vows with Everett Morss, Jr., in the old colonial First Parish Meeting House in INTERESTING BRIDES, THESE FOUR. OF DIVERSE PERSONalities and types, each with a sufficient endowment of gifts and graces to successfully withstand the sometimes trying bridal white. It's never yet been figured how brides and bride attendants can weep tears of exhaustion at the final "fitting" and then at the crucial hour sail serenely up the aisle fresh cheeked and bright of eye, the epitome of self possessed charm. But do it they can. All the Nahant summer colony is alert for the Bangs-Frothingham wedding. The smart little colony, wavebound and entirely unpretentious, takes great pride in the brides who give their vows in the tiny Nahant Church. In this case as both bride and groom are so indelibly connected with colony life interest soars.

AN ENORMOUS RECEPTION, FOLLOWING A SMALL WEDDING, is the Paine-Dickson program and necessarily so. Counting the Dicksons and the Paines, the two clans could easily fill to overflowing a churchly edifice far larger than the Weston First Parish. So cards of invitation were limited to "family," for the most part, with the large guest list reserved for the reception. Of apartments within the Paine house, in Weston, there is no end. An army of wedding guests could be comfortably installed, and on a pleasant autumn afternoon the al fresco touch holds good, in spacious gardens and a wide pleasance exactly the thing for supper and dancing.

YOUNG PEOPLE FROM ALL AROUND THE SOCIAL CIRCLE attend Miss Nancy Hale and Taylor Scott Hardin today, in St. Paul's in Dedham. Miss Elsa Diederich of Maryland is honor maid. Virginia's first families and Washingtonian cave dwellers have in the usher troupe Duke Tyler, Leslie Gray, John Sweeney, Louis Jeffreys, John Sheppard of Canada, John Schiff and Ambler Liggett of New York. Bernard Lauriston Hardin is best man for his brother. Three New York girls are bridesmaids—Miss Hope Hollins, Miss Laura Hale and Miss Anita Potts, although strictly speaking, Miss Potts is as much a Bostonian as a Gothamite. Miss Mary and Miss Betty Cushing do the slow step march with the bride, and so does Miss Agnes Murchie. The latter are Bostonians.

AN ARTISTIC EXPRESSION OF WEDDING RAIMENT IS THE foregone conclusion when considering the bridal array of Miss Hale and her maids. Having a flair for frocks of the smartest design and most individual touch, and a pater and mater of fame in art it follows that bride and bridesmaids will be picturesquely done. The bride is a young set member distinctly clever. Her coming out was effected only last season, and her social success is to be measured by her inclusion in Junior League and Vincent Club lists—the ultimate so far as Boston's smart young feminine set measures success in gaining Olympus.

THE SLENDER SHADOW OF THE DEBUTANTE MOVES ACROSS the social screen. Today Miss Florence Gene Ward, daughter of the Richard Wards, accomplishes what is to be a very limited social flight. Her parents present her at a tea at their Swampscott summer home, and almost immediately she sails away to France to be gone the entire winter through, for study far from the debutante vortex. Miss Peggy Creighton entertains Monday for Miss Ward and for Miss Ward's house guests, a luncheon for 20 or so. Coming out briefly and then going into temporary eclipse, via the bluestocking route, is a plan growing greatly in favor with the debutantes. Perhaps they feel that the field, with a hundred or more fair young things annually making the curtsy, is a bit overcrowded.

NEXT SATURDAY MISS DOROTHY PRESTON IS THE DEBUTANTE receiving North Shore interest. Her mother, Mrs. Harold Cutler, gives a tea at her Swampscott place, and after that pleasantly formal affair is gotten through with a dinner-dance follows. The debutante doings of early October bring into center stage an attractive galaxy. October 19 there is a tea for Miss Josephine Lowell Sturgis, and on October 25 the young set dances at the Milton Club in one of the jolly occasions that clubhouse is distinguished for, in honor of Miss Martha Wigglesworth. Miss Anstiss Crowninshield Boyden comes in for family's and friends' felicitous attentions, during October and November, a dinner for a hundred guests, and a dinner and theater party.

THE GEORGE VON L. MEYER AUTUMNAL HEGIRA GETS UNDER way soon. And this season in larger numbers than is usual. Invariably when "Rockmaple" turns into a fiery richness of orange, gold and red Mrs. Meyer, senior, departs overseas for a winter in the foreign capitals she finds most diverting. This year she leaves early in October, and the junior Von L. Meyers go with her. Madame Brambilla, the former Miss Julia Meyer, also is in the family group, she and her mater going to Rome to spend the winter and renew the pleasant social intercourse both knew when the late Count Brambilla was a favored figure in the world of diplomacy.

HOMING ONES FROM SUMMERS ABROAD INCLUDE THE TALL and handsome matron who was formerly Mrs. Hinkley Welch, now Mrs. Roger Wolcott. Mr. Wolcott and his bride celebrated their marriage in the quietest possible way, sans elaborateness of any sort, and then departed for England and the Continent, taking Miss Barbara Welch and the Welch boys with them. Now, after a summer on the southern English seacoast, they are about to arrive on this side and go at once to their country home for the autumn. There are three sons, Francis, Holmes and Sohier Welch.

THE LOVELY MISS BARBARA is a bud this winter, and exactly the sort to make a distinct hit. She has a bright beauty, poise and polish, three items necessary when a bud is to be as successful as fond friends and parents desire her to be. A tentative date has been down on the debutante list for some time, but now that Mrs. Wolcott comes home some definite announcement will be forthcoming. At any rate previous plans of a dance at the Essex Country Club will be probably carried out some time during October.

Fall Fashion Week and the New Styles

Summer in Boston, so far as Dame Fashion is concerned, ends tomorrow.

Fall Fashion Week, ushering in the latest in apparel style for men, women and children, begins Monday and from then on the wearing of light and cool garments will be passe.

This annual event, observed by the leading Boston stores and heralded in impressive newspaper advertisements, special window displays, is of more than usual interest this year.

SHOW BEST MODELS

Reproduction of the best models from the Parisian salons and other European fashion centers await Boston citizens in the displays that progressive merchants have provided for them.

"What's new for Fall?" the question every woman is now asking, will be found fully and satisfactorily answered.

For instance, the silhouette has not changed radically. Skirts are a trifle longer, the right length, of course, depending on the individual figure. From two to three inches below the knee is the average. Flat hips will prevail.

The Princess line is found in many of the new models, although more discreetly handled than last season's model. The ensemble rules for daytime, afternoon or evening, and the short jacket bids fair to be one of the successes of the season.

Fabrics, colors and contrasts are more subtle and less obvious than in past seasons. The vogue of velvet continues as a trend toward greater eleganace and formality. The feminine influence is seen in light weight sheet woolens.

BROWN THE COLOR

Felt still leads in the hat line, but it is frequently combined with plush. Brown is the leading color in millinery this fall, closely followed by the range of blues wine reds and green.

RETURN OF GIRL AVERTS "MASSACRE" OF JEWS

Vienna, Sept. 15 (INS)—The return of a missing girl to a village near Novisad, Jugoslavia, today prevented possible violence to the Jewish residents of the village. When the girl disappeared, a rumor immediately sprang up among the uneducated and superstitious peasants that she had been made a victim to a ritual murder in the Jewish synagogue.

Feeling against the Jews ran high as the rumor spread. Officials found difficulty in restraining the peasants from violence and placed a guard around the Jewish quarter. Then the girl returned.

BELIEVE CARNES FLED TO SOUTH AMERICA

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 15 (AP)—While private and city detectives in Los Angeles were investigating the whereabouts of Clinton S. Carnes, missing Southern Baptist home mission board treasurer, church authorities were firm in the belief that he had fled to South America.

Meanwhile the office of John A. Boykin, solicitor-general of Fulton County, was silent on the reported subpoena of a "prominent Atlanta physician" in the investigation.

N. E. COUNCIL TOLD STRIKE END NEAR

operation between capital, management and labor to make this effective," he asserted.

PLAN TO END STRIKE.

Mr. Drake's announcement that a plan acceptable to both mill owners and workers had been hit upon made at the previous session, was hailed with satisfaction by all the delegates.

"Both sides have agreed to a plan," he stated, "and all that remains is how it shall be put in operation. Whether the operatives go back at their old wage scale, or at the cut of the mill officials, doesn't matter so long as they go back and the plan of reassignment of labor tasks to meet modern conditions is put into effect."

Today Mr. Drake expressed the belief—in connection with the New England textile industry as a whole—that mills which survive will be economical units, well arranged, equipped with modern machinery and have efficient management. New Bedford's textile mills, he believed, measure up to these specifications.

BUILD UP INDUSTRIES

Speaking at today's opening of the session, President John S. Lawrence of the New England Council, called for a concerted effort on the part of every New England community for the building up of its industries, and declared that upon such efforts will depend the prosperity of New England.

He pointed out to the 1200 members attending the 12th quarterly session that the cotton textile industry does not form the predominant factor in New England's industry, but that a substantial part of it does belong here.

"I believe we will retain a part of this great industry," declared Mr. Lawrence, "but we must replace a part with other industries if we are to employ all our labor and provide essential exports."

Albert G. Neal, manager of the Fitchburg Gas & Electric Light Company, and chairman of the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke on the subject of "Community Development."

NEW ENGLAND ADVANTAGES

"New England has definite economic advantages as an area in which diversified industries can thrive. Many industries now handicapped could well take advantage of these favorable factors," he declared.

"New England now has before it a tremendous opportunity to diversify further its already varied industries, if the communities aggressively set themselves to the task of maintaining and improving the conditions near which their industries operate, and foster in every legitimate way new industries originating at home or elsewhere."

Dudley Harmon, executive vice-president of the council, in his report told of the progress that is being made by the New England Council in formulating a comprehensive plan for presenting the advantages of New England to itself and to the rest of the country.

"Our studies indicate that New England offers advantages as a location for industry, as a place in which to live, and as a region to visit. A few of these advantages are the quality of New England products, vast reservoirs of skilled labor, favorable climate, adequate supply of power, excellent transportation facilities and cultural environment," said Mr. Harmon.

TO PRESENT SALES PLAN.

He announced that an All-New England sales plan will be presented at the conference to be held in Portland, Me., on November 15 and 16.

Factory laws, shipping facilities, power supply and cost, taxation percentages and climate were cited by John A. Williams, vice-president of the Likly Luggage Co., Inc., as reasons why that concern has decided to move its entire plant from New York State to Fitchburg.

After investigations covering many states, Mr. Williams declared, the company became convinced that a New England location "presents the most in natural advantages of any section in the country."

Mr. Williams further declared that his company would like the opportunity to welcome competitors to New England, "as we already have been welcomed."

TO BOOM PROVIDENCE.

The formation of an organization to be known as the Metropolitan Providence Industrial Development Committee, to encourage and create sentiment favorable to the future progress and prosperity of the city of Providence, has been recommended by the advisory board of the council.

This was revealed by Arthur L. Aldred, chairman of the committee and president of the Gladding Dry Goods Company of Providence, and former president of the Providence Chamber of Commerce.

The recommendation was made after a survey covering a period of 15 months by the division of industrial and municipal research of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Aldred pointed out that other cities have followed a program of this nature with success.

SAFE-CRACKERS GET $1250

The robbers entered the office of the company through a skylight after scaling a high fence that encircles the premises. The open safe, looted of its contents, was discovered by a watchman, who notified the police.

BRIAND CONFIDENT OF RHINELAND EVACUATION

Paris, Sept. 15 (AP)—Full of confidence as to the outcome of negotiations with Germany over the evacuation of the Rhineland, Foreign Minister Briand will return to Geneva tonight. He is encouraged by the unanimous approval his colleagues in the cabinet gave him when he explained the situation.

L'Echo de Paris, however, said that M. Briand's optimism did not appear to be shared by the rest of the cabinet ministers. They were stated to be inclined to be sceptical as to the favorable outcome, holding the Germans were asking for everything and offering practically nothing.

Southampton, Eng., Sept 15 (INS)—George Storck, an American, left Hamble airdrome this afternoon to attempt a 25,000-mile flight around the world by himself. His first scheduled stop was Paris. The flight is being made in an Avroavian seaplane christened Seattle.

Cook to Recommend Preferential Primaries

As a result of the unprecedented scramble for places on the state ticket in the primary this year, Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook indicated today that he will recommend holding preferential primaries in the future to the next Legislature.

Under such a plan the voter would be given the opportunity of marking his ballot for all candidates for a given office in his party, according to choice—1st choice, 2nd choice, etc., or if he chooses, marking only one name. When the ballots are counted, if none of the candidates secured a majority of first choice votes, the second and succeeding choices would be taken into account.

DRAPER MAKES ATTACK ON INNES RULE

The three-cornered fight for the the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, which is causing Republican chieftains alarm, was further intensified today when Eben S. Draper made a direct attack on Charles H. Innes of Boston.

Speaking at a Republican rally held under the auspices of the Hatfield Club of Massachusetts at the University Theater, Harvard sq., Cambridge, Draper denounced Innes and linked his name with that of B. Loring Young, who yesterday was attacked by the third candidate, Butler Ames.

"I am sure the people of Cambridge will see to it," he said, "that the lineup is not Innes, Coakley and Quinn, and I don't think it makes the window dressing any better to decorate it with Young."

The Draper charges dividend interest with a statement made in Pemberton sq. by Clarence A. Barnes, candidate for the Republican nomination for Attorney-General, who declared that during the week Governor Al Smith received his letter, profits of the Albany Baseball Pool, aproximating $100,000 were divided in the Hotel Ten Eyck at Albany.

DRAPER ATTACKS INNES.

The University Theater rally was presided over by Congressman Dallinger and the many Republican candidates present were restricted to three minutes each in speaking. Congressman Dallinger, in opening the meeting, announced that candidates would not deal in personalities, but Candidate Draper had not entered the theater at that time and was ignorant of the ruling.

"I am going to say just one thing to you," he said in opening his remarks. "The Ward 4 Republican Club of Boston, which is Charles H. Innes, has indorsed B. Loring Young for the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate. Charlie Innes presided at that meeting. He wants Mr. Young nominated. He wants access to the U. S. Senate.

INNES GAME EXPOSED

"Last spring the Innes game in Boston was exposed. What are you going to do about it? Chicago cleaned house. Chicago made its name decent in State and national affairs. It threw Big Bill Thompson out. Boston is about ready to throw little Charlie out.

"Charlie Innes is not for me and I'm not for him. We don't see things the same way.

"I think the people of Massachusetts are going to see to it that Innes doesn't rule Massachusetts. I am sure the people of Boston and Cambridge and Massachusetts will see to it that the lineup is not Innes, Coakley and Quinn, and I don't think it makes the window dressing any better to decorate it with Young."

Candidate Young, who yesterday bitterly resented the charge of his other opponent, Butler Ames, that he appeared as a lobbyist for the Associated Industries before legislative committees, many of the members of which he had appointed, failed to resent Draper's remarks.

IRWIN TALKS ON HOOVER

"I do not propose to criticize my opponents," he said, "or to plead my own cause. My record can speak for me. I would prefer that my indorsers speak for me rather than do so myself. He devoted the remainder of his time to an indorsement of Hoover.

The meeting opened with the singing of a Hoover song, and Will Irwin, novelist, and Hoover's biographer, gave a brief sketch of the Republican standard bearer's life.

Butler Ames was absent, but there was a large representation of other candidates present, all of whom made brief addresses. They were Lieutenant-Governor Frank Allen, seeking the nomination for Governor; Russell A. Wood, candidate for State treasurer; Dwight L. Allison, Miss Julia Buxton, Harvey E. Frost, Roswell F. Phelps, and Maj. Roland H. Choate, candidates for State auditor; Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner, candidate for attorney-general; Mrs. Esther M. Andrews and Ralph R. Stratton, candidates for the Governor's council; Congressman Charles L. Underhill, candidate for re-election, and J. Ernest Kerr, candidate for State treasurer.

BARNES GETS AFTER SMITH

Candidate Barnes, who was scheduled to debate with Edward P. Barry, aspirant for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor, delivered his revelations on the Albany pool before the arrival of his opponent.

Governor Smith has invited me to go to Albany and assist the district attorney of Albany county in cleaning up the notorious Albany baseball lottery," he said in part. "I shall be in Albany on Wednesday, prepared to accept the Governor's invitation and show him how a Massachusetts attorney of experience can get results when he means business.

"In order that the governor may not leave for his Western trip without knowing where the headquarters of the Albany Pool were located on the day I wrote him, I now tell him, without any prejudice whatever to one of the most reputable hotels in America, that during the week when he received my letter the profits of the Albany Baseball Pool, amounting to approximately $100,000 were divided among the men higher up, in the Hotel Ten Eyck at Albany. This should be near enough to the Capitol to satisfy the Governor's sense of drama.

Candidate Barnes said that tonight at Tremont Temple he will go into the subject of the Albany pool and answer any charges made by Candidate Barry in his absence.

Also at Tremont Temple tonight former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin will discuss decentralization of power on Beacon Hill and the recent rum scandal at the State House.

HOOVER BALKS AT WARRING ON WHISPERS

Washington, Sept. 15 (INS)—Ignoring all appeals for a personal denunciation of "whispering" attacks on Governor Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic rival, Herbert Hoover today turned his attention to plans for winning the soldiers' vote to the Republican cause.

The nominee meanwhile declined comment for about the fifth time on the letters written him by former Senator C. Hansbrough, now heading the Smith Independent League, asking for a repudiation of "whispered" attacks on Governor Smith. On one occasion, Hoover said he was paying no attention to the "whispers" as they were current in every Presidential campaign.

STATEMENT ISSUED.

When newspapermen pressed the Hoover headquarters for a reply, George Akerson, the nominee's secretary, issued this statement:

"Mr. Hansbrough's first letter and his second were given to the press before Mr. Hoover even had a chance to read them," Akerson said "That is a discourteous practice which Mr. Hoover himself never indulges in. He refuses to pay attention to such communications when they are handled in that way. That is not the way gentlemen do things."

Some of Hoover advisers declared it would be proper for Hoover to speak about the whispers. They maintained he was attacked in the whispering campaign just as much as Smith has been. They argued it would be beneath the dignity of a presidential nominee to denounce whispers against his opponent and that so far as the whispers against him were concerned, by remaining silent he was following the precedent established by Republican nominees in the past.

WHISPERS DENOUNCED.

Finally, they pointed to Work's denunciation of all whispers as having been issued with and by Hoover's approval.

The Republican nominee today invited to luncheon members of the Republican Service League, comprising veterans who served in the World War.

Among those attending the conference were Col William J. Keville, of Massachusetts; Orville E. Cain, of New Hampshire; William J. Whitehouse, of Rhode Island, and Col. H. Nelson Jackson, of Vermont.

U. S. Chief Justice And Italy's Prince Celebrate

Today is the birthday of two men holding exalted positions in two great nations.

One is Prince Humbert of Piedmont, only son of the king and queen of Italy and heir to the throne, who celebrates his 24th birthday anniversary.

The other is William Howard Taft, former President of the United States, and present chief justice of the Supreme Court, who is 71 years old. He is celebrating the occasion at his summer home, Pointe-Au-Pic, Murray Bay, Canada.

SMITH EXPANDS ITINERARY OF TOUR WEST

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 15—Governor Smith broadened the scope of his western tour today.

Instead of stopping only at the half-dozen large cities of the West to deliver major speeches he will stop as well at a score of smaller towns. Corn growers of Nebraska, wheat farmers of Kansas and oil workers of Oklahoma all will have an opportunity to see—and possibly hear—the Democratic presidential nominee.

He will make three stops in Nebraska, 14 in Kansas, three in Oklahoma, and four in Colorado, under the revised schedule announced today.

Kansas is the native state of Senator Charles Curtis, Republican vice-presidential nominee and traditionally Republican though carried by Wilson in 1912 and in 1916.

Starting from Omaha on Sept. 19, after his speech on Tuesday night, the Smith special will be routed to Lincoln Nebraska's capital, arriving there at 11:35 a. m., for a stop of half an hour.

There the revised schedule takes in Fairbury, Neb., Belleville, Clay Center, Manhattan, Topeka, MacFarland, Kan., and Herrington, Kan.; Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Ponca City, Okla.; Arkansas City, Winfield, Wichita, Newton, Hutchinson, St. John's, Kinsley and Dodge City, Kan.; Lajunta, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Denver, Col.

Stops between Denver and Minneapolis-St. Paul, where the Governor will speak on September 27, are still being worked out.

A series of half-hour broadcasts over extensive chains will begin next Monday, to continue three times a week for the duration of the campaign.

FIVE BROCKTON BOYS HELD FOR 35 THEFTS

Brockton, Sept. 15 (A.P.)—The escapades of five boys, all under 16 years old, were brought to an end today with their arrest after police had discovered a stolen automobile laden with loot taken from the Oak Ridge Golf Club during the night.

The boys, students at the junior and senior high schools here, were traced by means of a school book which one of them left behind when they fled from the automobile.

The boys were in Municipal court today facing 35 charges of larceny, including theft of 22 automobiles. The police discovered an abandoned gasoline station where the quintet stored the loot obtained in a series of breaks into the golf club and private homes.

Better Keep 'Em Guessin'

Taylor Holmes, sparkling star of "The Great Necker," can, when put to it, make a darn fine curtain speech. In commenting on his own "spiel," at the Majestic, Mr. Holmes avers that it is far better for an actor to keep his mouth closed and be judged stupid than to open it and remove all doubt.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Give This a Fair Trial

Gag hunters, attention! Borrow a line from "Take the Air," at the Wilbur, and knock the boys dead at that next stag meeting. Be heard complaining that your best friend ran away with your wife. Get someone to ask, "Was he good looking?" And you kill 'em with, "Don't know, never saw him."

NEW DEAL IN ST. JAMES STOCK COMPANY ADDS ITS IMPROVEMENT TO LOCAL DRAMA

CRAVEN SUBMISSION is graphically portrayed by Frank Craven in his comedy of golf and domestic domination, "The 19th Hole," which plays a return at the Hollis, starting Monday. Dorothy Blackburn assists.

RUTH THOMAS plays a prancing girl of small-time vaudeville, tawdry but true, in that epic of the varieties, "Excess Baggage," now to be seen at the Plymouth.

AN INKY IMP of mischief is Topsy The Terrible, played by Mona Ray in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Modern and Beacon. And there is little Eva (Virginia Gray) ready to go to Heaven right through the rafters.

JENNY HILSON is one of the bounding belles of the "Bowery Burlesquers" who will whip up a little whoopee next week for all comers to the Gayety.

THE HATED RIVAL—gent with the walking stick—has evidently lost out and must prepare himself for a nice long stroll. This is "Golden Dawn" at the Shubert, wherein Gil Squires (seated) does a dance that makes his legs look like ribbons fluttering in the breeze.

"GIVE 'EM A STORY," PRODUCER'S PLEA

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WITHOUT venturing too far off shore in taking collective measure of the lords and leaders of musical shows, the cautious examiner of facts and causes in the drama will quickly discover they are a miscellaneous lot. Not even upon the simple basic principle that a musical play must have good music do these monarchs of entertainment agree. Only upon a single point are they in complete accord; there must be good business—profitable receipts. This harmony of thought, however, is more economic than artistic.

CURRENT exhibitions are giving support to these views; shows not yet arrived but on the way will give further succor to the indictment. The structure of a substantial musical show is complicated; it is the consolidation of many units. Florenz Ziegfeld, who is no bashful child in the profession, insists that 80 per cent of the success of a show depends upon the grace and beauty of its girls. That is his tilt. George White, still true to his own Terpsichorean prowess, argues that dancing, tempered with music, is the main thing. Mr. J. J. Shubert, if you can believe all that the eye detects from his productions, leans heavily upon comedy; while George M. Cohan, apparently, has deep feeling for brass bands and a singing and dancing chorus of New York policemen. All of which indicates sundry trends of taste in the high places.

NOW comes Arthur Hammerstein, whose "Golden Dawn" at the Shubert reveals another slant in musical show essentials. Mr. Hammerstein, alone among his brothers of the craft, demands story—stirring narrative. He backs the book against all other factors of success. He presses firmly upon plot—bears down like a lusty stalwart. Mr. Hammerstein craves drama—and plenty of it. In his opinion songs are fleeting things and dances hardly ever to be depended upon. They're here today and gone tomorrow. And always he is prepared to present his case in court.

"A DANCE is dead in one season, at most," he declares with emphasis. "A song is forgotten in a few months, as was 'Three O'Clock in the Morning,' if you must have an Exhibit A. But the plot of a play, the book of a musical show, sustains the whole structure and may endure forever. Where would Puccini operas find a haven of refuge if it were not for the spendid stories into which the music is woven?" That is the view of Arthur Hammerstein, producer of "Golden Dawn," "Rose Marie" and a dozen other sizzling examples of book versus music and dance. It may be noted, however, that Mr. Hammerstein's products are seldom lacking in contributing rudiments. He still remains an earnest apostle of good melody.

ACROSS the street from the Shubert, Mr. Hammerstein has an energetic, talented rival, Mr. Gene Buck, whose gift to the theater and the nation was the discovery of Will Rogers. That, perhaps, is the most prodigious achievement of the generation. Now, Mr. Buck is not stirred so much by book and score as he is by speed and variety. A direct antithesis to the Hammerstein theory, he manages very well with a groping public. Mr. Buck's "Take the Air" has neither book nor score that will penetrate far into the future. But goshamighty! how it does rip things wide open.

"SURE, I'M A POLICEMAN"

"OFFICER!" exclaims William Boyd, "can you tell me where I can find a policeman?"—which is rather tough on Tom Kennedy, beefiest "bull" on the force in "The Cop" at the Keith-Albee next week.

WRITES AND ACTS 'EM

Frank Craven, who on Monday night returns to the Hollis in the second season of "The 19th Hole," is generally seen as the principal actor in comedies written by himself.

He did "The First Year," an irresistibly amusing treatment of the initial 12 months in the life of a young married couple, for three years. Before that he appeared in "Too Many Cooks," in which he wrote about the amusing trials of a couple of young lovers who decided to spend their married life in a suburban home built by themselves. Afterwards he gave the stage his "New Brooms," which presented and made immensely funny another domestic angle from the everyday life of young people.

Now he is exploiting, in a wholly laughable way, a play with a golfing theme that has to do with a scholastic-minded couple who find a temporary domicile in the midst of a suburban community knowing no other relaxation than golf.

As a playwright Mr. Craven displays not alone a particularly keen understanding of human nature, both of the man and of the group, but also he possesses the gift of being able to clearly translate his observations into the terms of the theater. In so doing he has been responsible for a chain of irresistibly funny plays.

JOLSON CAPITULATES

Al Jolson has decided to give the films a "break." Word from the West Coast comes that he has been persuaded to affix his signature to a long term contract calling for many more such things as "The Jazz Singer."

Celebrating Merger of Circuits

Vaudeville's "New Era Jubilee," which will be celebrated next week in more than 700 theaters throughout the country, signalizes the merger of the great Keith-Albee Vaudeville Circuit of the East and the Orpheum Circuit of Vaudeville Theaters in the West—a merger that has been aptly called the wedding of circuits.

Originating in Boston, the Keith-Albee Circuit grew rapidly westward, until its theaters were established in every city of importance from the Atlantic Coast to Chicago. As this great Eastern Circuit grew and prospered, the Orpheum Circuit of Vaudeville Theaters likewise established itself, but serving only the region between Chicago and the Pacific Coast and from Vancouver to New Orleans. It never invaded the East, and had no affiliation east of Chicago except with Keith-Albee.

Because of the fact that Orpheum has proven itself a popular name with various theaters, cafes, etc., there has been a great deal of misapprehension on this point. Many have thought that an Orpheum theater must mean one of the theaters of the Orpheum Circuit. It did not.

The Orpheum Circuit, now affiliated with Keith-Albee, has no interest east of Chicago, and it never operated a theater east of Chicago under its name.

GENERATIONS OF ACTORS'

Ian Emery, a member of the talented cast presenting "The Bellamy Trial" at the Copely, studied during his youth for service in the British army. But he never lost sight of his original ambition,—the stage. He is the son of Edward Emery, a prominent actor, and Mrs. Georgia Waldron, a star of former years. His lineage goes back to the year 1720 when John Emery, began his career on the stage. Since that time the Emery began been in stage work—"in and of the theater," as they say.

Ian Emery

The grandson of the first Emery to follow a stage career was another John, considered by many one of the foremost comedians of his time. Mr. Emery's grandfather, Samuel Emery, was one of the foremost actors and directors in England.

At the present time, Ian Emery's father is playing in New York. Mr. Emery is the fourth generation of acting on his mother's side of the family and the sixth on his father's side.

WELL, WHY NOT?

Sir Harry Lauder, now at work at Cricklewood Studio, London, in the film production "Auld Lang Syne," believes the public will get its money's worth from this film, as he will be seen on the screen practically throughout the picture. His remark, of course, was made with a sly wink.

Looking Ahead

"Paris Bound," a comedy by Philip Barry, at the Plymouth.

NOTED HOTEL REPRODUCED FOR MOVIE

Building a full size replica of the interior of a magnificent hotel at Monte Carlo was one of the many extraordinary features connected with Marion Davies' new picture, "The Cardboard Lover," on view at Loew's Orpheum next week. The hotel, built on one of the gigantic stages at the Metro-Goldwin-Mayer studios, was designed by Cedric Gibbons, head of the M-G-M art department, and was ultra-modernistic in style. Much of the furniture and all of the decorations were made to order at the property shop of the studio.

Marion Davies

More than 100 employes manned the movie hotel, while the casting director searched all Hollywood for 500 extras of continental characteristics to play the roles of the magnificently dressed men and women who appear to haunt the famous resort.

The hotel is used for only one of the opening sequences of the story where Miss Davies, with 25 pretty college girls, arrives at Monte Carlo for a week's visit. Here in the hotel she meets Nils Asther, the hero, and Jetta Goudal, the exotic siren who has bewitched his senses.

Prepare for Opening of New Cocoanut Grove

After several weeks of extensive alterations Renard's Cocoanut Grove will reopen for the season on Thursday night, Sept. 20.

Patrons of this rendezvous will view a newer and enlarged place with increased dancing area and equipped with a modern system of ventilation.

Jacques Renard and his orchestra, as usual, will play music for the dancing and concerts.

"Mickey" Alpert will continue as master of ceremonies.

OLD "TOM" IS STILL PEER OF 'EM ALL

In all American literature no work has achieved the sensational popularity as that attributed to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," save the Bible.

Even today, 75 years after the first publication, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" enjoys a supremacy in the literary world envied by both budding and established authors.

On the stage, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has appeared in every known variety of presentation. Tent show, wagon show, stock company, repertoire, tabloid, burlesque, drama, comedy—all have played "Tom" shows.

Back in 1901, in Des Moines, Ia., "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was presented in operatic form, for just one performance. It was not a success, due to unforeseen financial difficulties, but it quite rounded out the gamut of varieties of stage production.

Recently radio station WGBS broadcasted "Uncle Tom's Cabin" as a radio play. It brought thousands of appreciative responses from fans thousands of miles distant.

And now, to cap the climax, the most pretentious "Tom" offering yet attempted is being shown at the Modern and Beacon Theaters in the form of the motion picture with Movietone.

Has Control Big Leaguers Might Well Emulate

Donald Crisp, who directed William Boyd in "The Cop," new film at the Keith-Albee, has a reputation as an effective marksman.

During his many years of directing, Crisp has never hired a professional marksman for a trick shooting scene. Crisp himself has always stepped into the breach.

During an early scene one of the players was called upon to toss a lump of coal into a bucket of soapsuds from a distance of 35 feet. Try as he would the actor could not locate the bucket. Each shot missed its mark by a wide margin. Here Crisp stepped in and with a deft snap to his arm deposited the bit of coal in the midst of the soapsuds. Just to prove that it was no "fluke" the director was successful in three out of four attempts.

ON OUR WEDDING DAY

THE GLOOMY GROOM and the happy bride are generally found in these contrasting expressions. Why does the captured male always wear that hurt look? June Collyer and James Hall in "Four Sons."

Luce Loses Lucrative Job

Because he maintains that a shrinking violet cannot successfully represent itself as a flowering shrub, John W. Luce, master of hounds for "Uncle Tom's Cabin," turned down a handsome offer to depict a lilac bush in the promotion of "Lilac Time," new film thrill at the Olympia and Fenway.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Ah, Pin Him Down, Georgie!

Joseph A. Di Pesa, who represents the Copley Theater in the local Press, claims that it is so quiet during the tense moments of "The Bellamy Trial," you can hear a pin drop. But George MacKinnon wants the matter explained. "Do you use candle or duck pins?" queries the definite Mr. MacKinnon.

THREE NEW AND THRILLING SCREENPLAYS GIVE SCRUTINY TO THE SHADOWY PAST

IMAGINE HIS EMBARRASMENT! Fascinated by the one he pursues, fastened by the girl he left behind him! This victim is Nils Asther. The lady who taunts him is Jetta Goudal, and the lady who tugs him is Marion Davies. "Cardboard Lover," Orpheum.

"HIST, HULDA," warns Ronald Colman, "what have you scribbled on yon screed, is't a True Confession or perchance a treatise on the tortoise? Answer, ere I lose me temper!" This does NOT occur in "Two Lovers" (State) and Vilma Banky says nothing.

TAKING THE CAKE, or maybe we're wrong, perhaps the bayonet has a bun on. At any rate it is Colleen Moore's way of making her way about the British Army unmolested in "Lilac Time," new fillum drama of war and wimmen. Olympia, Fenway.

"ONE . . . TWO . . . THREE . . ." Rushing doom stares Lewis Stone straight in the eye, but he unflinchingly gazes at the mad monarch and defies him to pull the trigger. Emil Jannings and all concerned fairly outdo themselves in "The Patriot," at the Metropolitan.

'PATRIOT' IS ANOTHER GERMAN VICTORY

By LEO GAFFNEY

ONE good way, perhaps the only way, to clear the motion picture screen of its rubbish would be to give us all a chance to see more things like "The Patriot," Emil Jannings' picture newly arrived at the Metropolitan. Hit the public hard enough with quality such as this and it will never tolerate less. But, alas and alack, if all pictured entertainment were intelligent, Beauty would be commonplace, and the superlative adjectives we stand ready to hurl after "The Patriot" would lose all sting.

"THE PATRIOT" was fashioned by a combination of intellect that has been making screen masterpieces as a matter of habit. Hans Kraly, genius of scenarists, did the script from Alfred Neumann's great play; Ernst Lubitsch, genius of directors, fashioned the production, and Emil Jannings, mightiest actor of the screen, is the star. Notice, by the way, that all these gentlemen are Germans—and draw your own conclusions.

FROM the gloomy history of Russia, when czarist tyrants ruled with a rod of iron, is the play drawn. The Jannings character is that pathetic creature, Paul the First, half-crazed monarch, cruel despot, living in mortal terror of his life. As Mr. Jannings plays him he is a gross caricature of a man with fat, sagging cheeks, unkempt hair, uncertain gait and dull, brutish eyes.

HE is a half-witted child with the body of a man, screaming for what he wants, and handled like a child by Count Pahlen, upon whom he lavishes a peculiar, dog-like devotion. Piggishly, he gorges at table, leers at women, spills his wine and then falls like a log upon his bed; only to be tortured by dreams of assassination, starting up in terror in the middle of the night with a swollen, sweaty face; a gibbering idiot paralyzed with fear.

EVEN the dullest person will feel the force of the Jannings portrayal and be breathlessly fascinated. So also will he be aware of the power of Lewis Stone in the role of Pahlen, the "patriot," master of his sovereign and also his betrayer. Some will say that Mr. Stone looms larger in the piece than even Jannings, that he builds a more difficult role up higher than the star—and they will not be far from right. Mr. Stone has been in many movies, and many of them pretty silly, but he has yet to give anything but a perfectly polished performance.

AS for Mr. Lubitsch there is no one quite like him. He can get more out of the commonplace business of opening and shutting doors than all of the Hollywood school can accomplish with its tin pan emotions. He can concentrate a few "extras" in a corner and make it seem like a vast mob. His action is ever changing its pace, never monotonous, never too slow, never too fast. His settings are correct, perfectly lighted and endowed with all the reality of frostbite.

ONE remaining player, as yet unmentioned, perfectly serves "The Patriot," Florence Vidor. Never had an actress greater opportunity to overact, but never was the chance turned down with such grace. That is typical of all Miss Vidor's late work. But even if "The Patriot" were not peopled by a great cast it would still be a great picture as long as it had Lubitsch. A good director such as he could make actors out of sticks and stones or certified hams—he has done it.

A PLEASANT WAY OUT

Humor is a mental shock, contends Taylor Holmes, star of "The Great Necker," now at the Majestic. In recounting his experiences, recently, on how he became an actor, Mr. Holmes digressed sufficiently to tell of an episode with a manager to whom he applied for employment in those early days when the managers were not looking for him.

Taylor Holmes

"If you are a Taylor Holmes comedian, make me laugh," commanded the manager. "I'm too hungry to make you 'bust' into giggles," said Mr. Holmes, "but I'll make you smile if you lend me eighty dollars and don't take my address." The manager smiled lightly, and then laughed.

"It was the mental shock of parting with eighty dollars and the sudden happiness of realizing that he didn't have to," said Mr. Holmes, "that made him smile."

Cook, in "Paris Bound," Goes Far in Two Years

Donn Cook, who plays the young husband in "Paris Bound," in support of Madge Kennedy, has had a meteoric career as an actor.

His first professional appearance was only two years ago in the all-star company supporting Mrs. Fiske in "The Rivals."

Since then he has risen rapidly, spending his summers in a Cleveland stock company and appearing in "New York Exchange" and "The Seed of the Brute" in the winter seasons.

Last fall George Tyler cast him as the young lover in "Spellbound" with Pauline Lord, and his engagement in "Paris Bound" followed almost immediately.

New Symphony Orchestra Season Soon to Start

Serge Koussevitzky will sail next week from France and, at the end of the month, will assemble the Boston Symphony Orchestra for rehearsal in preparation for the opening of its 48th season. The opening concerts will take place in Symphony Hall on Friday afternoon, October 5, and Saturday evening, October 6.

There will also be the usual series of five Monday evening concerts and the series of five Tuesday afternoon concerts. The Monday series begin on November 12th. Subscription applications are still being received.

ENTER MADAMOISELLE!

The Gaumont Film Company, Ltd. of London, celebrates its 30th birthday next month. Among its recent successes is "Madamoisell From Armentieres," which is being distributed throughout the United States by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Family Tree Determines Ronald Colman's Fate

Ronald Colman discovered that two of his ancestors were playwrights—and that decided him in favor of becoming an actor. Today he is a star, appearing at Loew's State next week with Vilma Banky in "Two Lovers."

Five years ago, Colman was an also-ran in the films, but this, it must be added, was in England. His first picture in America, "The White Sister," presented him in a feature role. England is Colman's birthplace.

The legitimate platform held him exclusively until 1916, when the war made incomes a little precarious. So he turned to the growing motion pictures—not without condescension, for they were then regarded as decidedly low-class. He left England and came to America.

In New York, Colman found enormous difficulty in getting work. After long and unpleasant traffic with casting managers, he ended in "La Tendresse." It was in that play that Henry King spotted him and persuaded him to go to Italy as leading man in "The White Sister."

"Romola" and "Tarnish" followed rapidly. He was next signed by Samuel Goldwyn, who co-starred him with Vilma Banky, and together they have made "The Dark Angel," "The Night of Love," "The Winning of Barbara Worth" and "The Magic Flame."

CONCERTS IN PROSPECT

Fritz Kreisler will open on October 14 what promises to be a remarkable series of Sunday afternoon concerts in Symphony Hall. Geraldine Farrar will appear on Sunday afternoon, October 21, and the English Singers on the afternoon of October 28.

Serge Koussevitzky, besides opening the Boston Symphony season in Symphony Hall on October 5, will give a recital on the double-bass, the instrument by which he became famous before he devoted his career to conducting.

On Monday evening, October 15, Henri Casadesus, founder of the Society of Ancient Instruments, and virtuoso of the viola d'amore, will come from Europe in order to appear with Koussevitzky, the two musicians playing jointly music of the early epoch to which their instruments belong.

Other recitals will be given by Vladimir Horowitz, the extraordinary young Russian pianist, who will appear on Sunday evening, October 21. Theremin, with his new invention, the "Thereminvox," will appear on Sunday afternoon, October 7, and Pompeo's Band will play on Sunday evening, October 28, with Maria Mantovani, as soloist.

"Little Spitfire" Is New Bill at Franklin Park

For their second week of stock at the Netoco Franklin Park Theater, Dorchester, the Al Lutiringer players will present "The Little Spitfire," a comedy success that played for two seasons on Broadway.

It is the story of a chorus girl "mismated," as her haughty society mother-in-law puts it, to the son of a millionaire. The girl's family, of humble origin, afford sharp contrast to the social connecions of her husband.

The leads will be played by Ann Kingsley and Foster Williams.

New St. James Stock Troupe Bows to Hub on Monday

With the successes of former seasons still fresh in mind the new Keith-Albee stock company faces its future on Huntington ave. with unbounded confidence. Monday evening is its inaugural, and the premiere is a Broadway production, Willard Mack's "A Free Soul." The company is well fortified in the matter of talent. John Warner, with a record of successful stock appearances in other cities behind him, is the leading man. Marion Grant is the leading lady, and other well known players are, Georgia Neese, Thomas McKnight, Edith [illegible] and George Taylor. John McKee will be responsible for the staging.

John Warner

Edith Mason Will Sing for First Plaza Recital

Edith Mason, soprano, of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, has been chosen as the artist to inaugurate the first of a series of Sunday evening concerts announced for this season to be given in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza hotel.

The concerts are sponsored jointly by Mme. Amelia Conti, concert manager of the Chicago Opera Company, and Arthur Race, managing director of the Plaza.

Mme. Conti is well known in this city, being the daughter of Prof. Conti, Italian composer and leader who wielded the baton during the early years of the Boston Opera Company.

Miss Mason's appearance is scheduled to take place in October, and other artists to appear will be selected from the following list: Mary Garden, Rosa Raisa, Tito Schipa, George Baklanoff, Cyrene Van Gordon, Ethel Leginska, Horace Britt, Richard Bonnelli, Marguerite D'Alverez, Mary Roselli; Carmela Ippolite and the Gordon String Quartet.

STAGE AND SCREEN

The Critic Overwhelmed

In reporting the qualities of the Colman-Banky film, "Two Lovers," which comes Monday to Loew's State, one New York reviewer became positively idyllic. He raves: "Oh, lordy, how they can love! . . . what closeups! . . . more pep than pash!" Editor's note—Gosh, all that for 50c?

FOX SECURES FLAHERTY FOR FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15—With the keen interest in these close-to-nature, primitive epics, as it were, it is not surprising that the Fox Company has signed Robert J. Flaherty to make an Indian picture. Flaherty, you will remember, is the producer who made "Nanook of the North" and "Moana of the South Seas."

The latest Flaherty drama is to be called "Nanook of the Desert" and it deals with the Navajo Indians, their customs, their tribal ceremonies and their picturesque way of living.

I was greatly surprised to hear that, although it will take six months to complete this picture, three months already have been spent on the Arizona desert and in the New Mexico wastelands. Before the picture is completed Flaherty expects to go into old Mexico. The lead will be given to a full-blooded Navajo Indian, which is as it should be.

THERE are several girls who are willing to hide in the baggage of Carl Laemmele, Jr. I wouldn't mention names for the world, but no less than two of them have confessed this to me. Young Laemmele goes to New York with Paul Fejos to shoot night club scenes for "Broadway."

It's difficult for Carl to keep his balance these days, for half of Hollywood's ingenues ogle him, with the hope of getting a job or a smile from the heir to Universal City. Fortunately, he is a well-balanced youth, interested in his work.

HOLLYWOOD is getting second-hand reports from New York of Al Jolson's interest in Ruby Keeler, the famous tap dancer. Ruby is the gal that Texas Guinan discovered and made the most famous cabaret dancer in New York. Al says he can't even smile at a girl that some one doesn't rumor him engaged but reports from New York say Al and Ruby like each other pretty well.

BUSTER COLLIER who has been dodging inquisitive reporters who wanted to ask him about Constance Talmadge's rumored engagement to an eastern visitor, has been kept pretty busy by Tiffany-Stahl. Buster has a contract to make four pictures and the first of these "New Orleans," is about to be megaphoned.

It's to be a Reginald Barker special and if all goes well, it probably will be filmed in New Orleans. "New Orleans" is to be one of Tiffany-Stahl's finest and it is to give Buster a break. By that I mean he is to be the lead.

THERE has been a feeling in Hollywood that sooner or later some of the stage directors would be brought out here to assist in the talkies. One of the first moves in this direction is the signing of A. H. Van Burean, who played Ben Hur on the stage for a number of years.

Van Buren leaves New York, September 25 for Hollywood to direct feature-length talkies. At present he is staging "Fast Life" for Al Woods and previous to that he directed "Alias the Deacon," "The Trial of Mary Dugan" and "Little Spitfire."

Perhaps he can bring to movietone experience of the stage while the Fox Studio can give him in return a few lessons on the intricacies of motion pictures.

MADGE THE MIMIC

A popular expression, "That must have been two other fellers," seems to apply to Madge Bellamy. As the mimic in "Mother Knows Best," Fox Movietone picture, she is seen and heard as several other people. Madge impersonates, among others, Harry Lauder, Anna Held and Al Jolson.

LAW LOSES TO DRAMA

Ralph Morgan, who plays the heart-broken husband in "Excess Baggage," at the Plymouth, might have been a lawyer today if it had not been for a chance meeting with an actor friend. Morgan was a law clerk in New York at the time and welcomed the opportunity. He was born in New York city. After attending Trinity school two years, he pursued his studies further on the European continent. Later, he returned to New York and attended Columbia University, taking the regular college course. This was followed by a course at the law school. It seemed strange after so much training for another profession, Mr. Morgan should choose a stage career. When asked why he did so, he answered, "The Lord only knows!" So the question still remains an enigma.

CALL HORNSBY TRACK CHARGES 'FRAME-UP'

gers Hornsby manager of the n Braves; John J. McGraw and ey C. E. Allen of Chicago are ved to be victims of a "frame- by a race-track tout, according dispatches received here today n Chicago.

ornsby, McGraw and Jockey Al are linked together in alleged rumgd horse race gambling" as a esult of a telephone bill said to ave been run up by Allen in sending "sure thing" tips to Hornsby, McGraw and others.

Officials of the Illinois Turf Association are unanimous in their belief that the entire "plot" is framed and that some cheap race-track tout is responsible.

Meanwhile Hornsby, who is in Boston, and McGraw, who has returned to New York, still continue to maintain their innocence. Both have expressed a complete willingness to "go to bat" before Commissioner Landis any time the high mogul of baseball decides on an investigation.

Stuyvesant Peabody, president of the Illinois Turf Association, in statements made at Chicago, today, declared that his association had not a scintilla of evidence involving Jockey Allen in any irregularities. for race track touts to represent themselves as jockeys, in sending out "tips."

At the hotel from which the calls to Hornsby and McGraw are supposed to have been made by the jockey, the hotel management declared that after looking the jockey himself, over, they were convinced he was not the man who stayed at their hotel and who was responsible for the hotel bills.

Most of the telephone bills were made out against "Mrs. C. E. Allen." The jockey himself had something to say about that.

"It's all a joke," he vehemently declared. "I was never married in my life, never made any telephone calls and never had the slightest occasion to call New York or Boston."

O. L. Foster, owner of a racing stable, and Allen's employer, corrobated the jockey's statements and declared that he, too, believed the entire thing was "framed."

Meanwhile both Hornsby and McGraw are "sitting tight." No move has been made to suspend them by Judge Landis and no plans have as yet been made for an official investigation.

Over 90 Candidates on Harvard Squad

By TED LYNCH

A large turnout, numbering over 90 players, greeted Head Coach Arnold Horween at Soldiers Field this morning as Harvard set sail on its 53rd football season.

Harvard's poor showing in the past few years apparently has hit the student body, for in this huge, almost-unworkable mass every type of American youth could be found.

That Horween was pleased with the turnout at the Stadium this morning is putting it mildly. The Crimson mentor never dreamt that such an army would harken to his football call especially after his two very lean years as Harvard head coach. Horween said that the turnout should go into three figures by the time the second session got under way this afternoon.

Horween inaugurated the season with a short talk to his large squad in the Harvard locker building. At this meeting Horween and his chief assistant, Duke Dunne, stressed the stiffness of the coming schedule and apparently got over the idea that Harvard still can reach the heights of intercollegiate football.

Horween handed the squad over to Captain Arthur French, who led the team on the run to the second team field. Here assistant coach John Donovan put them through a light setting up exercise.

Amongst that huge mob the observer could discern considerable football material, some rough but of potential ability, at any rate.

Practically every veteran was present this morning as were the various members of the undefeated freshman team, the nucleus of the third and probably last Horween football machine. Every man came back to college in fine shape and those cripples of a year ago, Gardner Lewis, Dave Owens, and Guy Holbrook are in A-1 condition.

Horween intended to put his charges through a stiffer workout this afternoon. Harvard has three weeks to prepare for its first game. The Crimson cannot waste any available time.

The usual first day cut was missing this year.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"THE cheers are only for the winners," remarked Mr. Boston as he read the news dispatch from Falls City, Neb., which stated that Lloyd Hahn's father, Dr. H. T. Hahn, was the only person at the station to greet the B. A. A. runner upon his arrival home from the Olympic games.

"A few months ago," resumed the veteran, "Hahn received a tremendous ovation when he left the home town in quest of international athletic fame. At that time the good citizens of Falls City were of the opinion Hahn would win at least one Olympic event. They considered Lloyd unbeatable at 800 meters.

"They then all wanted to know the famous athlete and to make themselves a part of his expected victory.

"Hahn, a failure in the Olympics, arrived home much like anybody else would. The fickle public has passed him up. The lack of anything even resembling a reception may have been a bitter blow to Hahn who until recently only knew the touch of victory. But if he remains in athletics he will become calloused to public opinion and will at least try not to care whether the crowd cheers or boos him.

"THE athlete with real courage stands up under such disappointments and comes back to shatter his own best records.

"Youth feels the sting of public disapproval more than one does in later life.

"Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world and recent conqueror of the sensational Armand Emanuel by the knockout route, could give Hahn some good advice. Walker, more than any other champion, has had his ups and downs. He knows better than anybody else that the world only loves a winner. Mickey has tried to be a winner as much as possible, not that he cares so much whether the world loves him or not, but because he knows that to the winner belongs the spoils.

"WALKER got his first taste of the fickleness of the public when he was defeated by Lou Bogash at the Arena. Mickey had won a flock of victories here prior to the Bogash match. In his previous start he had scored a technical knockout over Pal Reed and was mobbed by admiring fans.

"Walker was sick from ptomaine poisoning when he entered the ring against Bogash. He also gave away 14 pounds in weight. At that he was barely nosed out for the decision.

"The fickle public immediately got aboard the Bogash band wagon. It dropped Walker cold.

"That night, accompanied by the late Tom Goodwin, I dropped in on Walker at a Back Bay hotel. He was alone with the late Jack Bulger, his manager.

"'The world only loves a winner,' Bulger said laughingly as we entered.

"'Guess you're right,' replied Mickey. 'When I knocked out Reed, everybody wanted to meet me. Now I'm alone. You two are the only ones who have come in to see me tonight.'"

M'Kenney to Cut B.C. Squad on Monday

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Coach Joe McKenney will let the axe fall on his Boston College football squad early next week, in the first good-sized cut of the fall.

Joe has already reduced his squad by ten men, but these were dropped off at intervals. A look at the boys who were let out was enough to convince the coach that they wouldn't be of any value.

According to McKenney's present plans, the axe will do its damage on Monday after practice.

Boston College's grid squad has gone through one scrimmage and every member of the Eagle outfit had a chance to show what he possessed in the way of ability.

Joe is beginning to get a little worried about Al Weston. "He told me he'd be on hand last Monday and I haven't seen him since," said Joe. "But maybe he meant next Monday. I'm not anxious, though, for I feel sure that Al will report soon."

It won't harm any if Al doesn't show up for the calisthenics, etc., for he's in condition and resting after a hard baseball program. But he has to get around and start drinking in some of the new plays that Joe has been imparting to his first two backfields the past few days.

McKenney has a lot of startling plays in his bag of tricks but he's not giving them out for publication. Secret practice is due to start next week, and all the students and outsiders will have to cut a hole in the canvas if they want to get a line on McKenney's doings.

Chessy Antos, the tiny B. C. halfback who is somewhat along Paddy Creedon's line, is limping badly today. Antos is going to lose a few days with the squad and possibly a chance of winning the quarterback berth.

His injury is not of too serious a nature and he may be around in time to get the plays down pat for the opener with Catholic University on the 29th at the home of the red hose.

K. O. MUGGSEY DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

George Dewey Forrey, known in pugilistic circles as "K. O. Muggsey," died today at his home, 966 Bennington st., East Boston, after an illness of four days. Heart trouble was given as the cause of death.

Muggsey's rise to pugilistic fame was meteoric. Back in 1920 he emerged from his occupation as boilermaker and in four short months came within hailing distance of the New England welterweight title. He was one of the hardest hitters that ever entered his class.

He was born in East Boston on Dewey Day in 1898 and was educated at the Fitton Parochial School and the Lyman Grammar School. Since leaving the prize ring he has been employed by the City of Boston in the East Boston ferry department. He leaves a widow and three children.

B. U. LIKELY TO LOSE STAR

Solly Thurman, Boston University's fleet-footed halfback, may be lost to the team for the season on account of late afternoon classes. Solly is a sophomore at the law school and most of his classes come during the afternoon, as the football field is at Weston, he will be unable to reach practice in time.

Thurman has been a varsity back for two years. Last year he started in some of the games and he seemed slated for a starting job this fall for he is the fastest man in the backfield and a good broken field runner. He has been out to practice every day, however, and he is trying to arrange his classes so that he will be able to play.

If Thurman is lost, Boston University will be considerably weakened at the start of the season. For althought there are 15 backs working out daily at the Nickerson Field, at Weston, most of them are newcomers and need college experience before they can be of much use.

Jones Piles Up Early Lead on Perkins in Golf Final

BOBBY IS SIX UP AT HALFWAY MARK

carried into this match a terrible mental hazard as a result of his match with Bobby two weeks ago in Chicago, during the Walker cup matches. In Chicago, Bobby eliminated Perkins, 12-11, and a fortnight is not sufficient length of time to erase such a licking.

Perkins has one consolation, that of being 1 up on the American champion, for he took the first hole with a 4.

BOBBY GETS GOING

Bobby did not get his stride until he played his second shot at the third hole, where he hit the back of the cup from off the green with a wonderful chip shot

Then Bobby started to go, winning the next three holes with a birdie and two pars and went to 3 up by winning the ninth. Although Bobby started off with a 6, he was out in 36, which is only 1 over par.

After the turn Bobby hit the stride which has caused him to be rated the emperor of Golf, for during the next four holes he was 3 under par. He ran down birdies at the 10th, 11th and 14th and ran his lead to 7 up, for his par 3 at the 12th was good enough for a win and he was still 7 up going to the 16th.

Perkins did not play up to his usual standard, but there is not as much disgrace attached to his collapse for the golfer is rare who does not become rattled when opposed by Bobby Jones. Perkins is very popular with the gallery and his failure to make a better showing is a keen disappointment.

Perkins first displayed signals of distress at the second hole, where he had a seven-foot putt for a win, but putted short, and the best he got was a half.

No player can expect success when he passes up opportunity such as Perkins did at this hole. Another blow to the Englishman was the taking of three putts on the fifth green, and then when his tee shot from the sixth lodged behind a stump of a tree on the bank beyond the brook it was very evident that fortune which has favored him all week had deserted him.

PERKINS APPEALS.

Perkins appealed, was overruled, and his second shot collided with the stump and his ball went in the brook.

Although Perkins got his pars at the 10th and 11th he lost both holes to birdies and another birdie at the 13th dropped him to 7 down. Then Perkins settled down and managed to half the next three holes with par figures.

FIRST HOLE

337 Yards. Par 4

Perkins pulled an iron shot from the first tee into a trap and then Bobby sliced his drive into the woods. Perkins got a break when his ball from the trap hit the leaves of the tree or otherwise he would have been well over the green instead of on, 20 feet to the right of the cup.

In attempting to play from the woods, Bobby hit a tree, but his ball kicked out onto the fairway, rolling almost to the edge of the rock. Bobby looked up and half topped his third shot, the ball just reaching the near edge of the green

As Jones was lining up his putt, he accidentally moved his ball, led a stroke on himself, picked up and conceded the hole to Perkins.

Perkins 4, Jones 6. Perkins 1 up.

SECOND HOLE

304 Yards. Par 4

Perkins hit his tee shot over the mound and was just on the left-hand edge of the fairway, a perfect shot for this hole, as the only runway to the green is on the left.

Bobby was about three yards out in front of Perkins from the tee, but on the extreme right-hand side of the fairway. Perkins played a beautiful run-and-run shot, rolling to about seven feet from the cup.

Bobby was strong with his approach and when his ball came to rest it was on the ridge of the upper terrace, from where he putted and ran by about two feet.

Perkins made a miserable putt his ball traveling less than five feet. The hole was halved with fours, Perkins having passed up a wonderful opportunity to go to two up.

Perkins 4, Jones 4. Perkins 1 up.

THIRD HOLE

375 Yards. Par 4

After Perkins had driven a beautiful ball down the middle of the third fairway, Bobby hooked into the rough on the near side of a bunker, from where he played a fine shot, but was just short of the green

Perkins was also short with his second, playing a soft mashie. Perkins chipped four feet shot of the cup and then Bobby hit the back of the cup, but his ball failed to drop, and the hole was halved with fours.

Perkins 4, Jones 4. Perkins 1 up.

FOURTH HOLE

446 Yards. Par 4

Perkins topped his drive into the rough in front of the tee, and he was still on the edge of the rough and away after playing his second, while Bobby had crashed one well down the middle of the fairway.

Perkins dropped his third shot into the trap guarding the green, from where he played a wild shot which went over the green into the woods, and he conceded the hole to Jones, who had put his second on the back of the green.

Jones 3, Perkins 6. Match all even.

FIFTH HOLE

375 yards. Par 5.

Bobby went to 1 up by getting his par 5 at this hole. He was out in front of the tee and after Perkins had played his second, a brassie to the knoll on the left of the fairway, Bobby whaled into a brassie shot and was still out front.

Perkins played his third, a mashie niblick, to the right of the green to about 50 feet from the cup. Bobby was on with his third and 20 feet inside the Englishman.

Perkins left himself a nine-footer after his approach putt and then Bobby put his to within two yards of the cup. Perkins was still short on his second putt and Bobby won the hole with a 5.

Jones 5, Perkins 6. Jones 1 up.

SIXTH HOLE

150 Yards. Par 3

Bobby dropped his tee shot about 10 feet to the left of the cup, but Perkins was short and in the bank just over the brook, and directly behind a tree stump in an almost impossible lie.

He appealed to President Taylor of the United States Golf Association, the referee, asking for a lift, as it was impossible to play a second shot without going into the brook Perkins was refused a lift and his ball caromed off the stump and into the brook, costing him the hole.

Jones 3, Perkins 5. Jones 2 up.

SEVENTH HOLE

412 yards. Par 4.

Jones was 25 yards out in front of Perkins off this tee and the Englishman put his second over the green to the edge of the rough and to the right of the pin. Bobby was [illegible] with his second, 15 feet beyond the flag.

Perkins made a wonderful chip short to within a foot of the cup, and after Jones had laid his approach shot dead, the hole was halved in 4's.

Jones 4, Perkins 4. Jones 2 up.

EIGHTH HOLE

227 Yards. Par 3

Bobby was 20 feet short and to the left of this green with a No. 1 iron, and Perkins was home nicely 40 feet to the left of the cup. Bobby's chip just missed holing out, and Perkins followed by putting over the cup about 12 inches. The hole was halved with 3s.

Jones 3, Perkins 3. Jones 2 up.

NINTH HOLE

299 Yards. Par 4

Bobby Jones went to 3 up by getting a par at this hole. It was a poorly played second shot that cost Perkins this hole. With a trailing wind, Bobby drove a terrific tee shot at the ninth, his ball running up the bank and about 25 yards out in front.

Perkins was yards short of the green with his second and then Bobby put his on 12 feet from the cup. Perkins' chip was off color and he needed two putts to get down, while Bobby playing it safe with his first putt got an easy 4, and another gift hole.

Jones 4, Perkins 5. Jones 3 up.

BOYHOOD OF REV. GEORGE W. OWEN

A boy who wanted to be a [illegible] and [illegible] was the [illegible] of the boy, George Owen [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] being [illegible]. It [illegible] experience [illegible] effect.

George was [illegible] home [illegible] when [illegible] [illegible] through the ice on his sled.

His home was for a time in Utica, N. Y., but because of his father's work the family moved from one city to another. He read considerable, and was familiar with Cooper's novels and the books of Sir Walter Scott. At an early age, when he was scarcely more than seven, he was given a present of "Pilgrim's Progress" and was much [illegible]. Many of the [illegible] hours [illegible] reading [illegible] book [illegible] had more to do with his taking to the ministry than any other [illegible].

Just what one must do and believe in order to be a Christian was [illegible]. Once his Christian Sunday school teacher offered a prize for the boy who would earn the largest number of Bible verses. George won and then waited long and patiently for the teacher to fulfill her promise, but the prize never appeared. So far as the boy could see this woman was just as good a church member as ever, at least to all appearances she was. Here was another kind of a Christian problem. The boy felt that anyone who did not keep promises and pay debts was not a very good Christian.

One reason George thought more of religious matters than his fellows, perhaps, was because not only was his father a minister but both of his grandfathers were Methodist ministers. He had heard much religious discussion and fell naturally into a ministerial way of thinking. His home influence was fine and he, like so many other boys who finally end in the ministry, had a mother who was very close to him in all his problems.

Once, however, unconsciously his mother shocked and pained him. Both his father and mother had gone to an evangelistic meeting and left ten-year-old George at home. His mind, however, was filled with thoughts about the service his parents were attending. [illegible]

[illegible]

Soon after [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] was really converted.

"When 18," he wrote, "I was still struggling [illegible] I had been to a camp meeting [illegible] had left me [illegible] it was a beautiful summer [illegible] and as I was walking down [illegible] presence of God [illegible] a peace and [illegible] [illegible] from that time to this [illegible] [illegible] neither of his [illegible]

A dream of a magnificent Jewish center as the home for liberal Judaism in Boston is about to be realized in part with the completion of the new Temple Israel school at the corner of Longwood ave. and Riverway. LYNCHING STILL PROBLEM IN SOUTH

"The hope of America's becoming a lynchless land this year was shattered by the record of seven victims, all negroes, during two summer months," says the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, through its commission on race relations, in an official statement issued today. "These are seven victims too many," the statement firmly insists, adding that "their tragic deaths show the savagery of race prejudice."

The recent occurrences are especially deprecated in the council's report because of the fact that the first four months of this year had been wholly free from lynchings. It is pointed out, moreover, that one of the victims of the last two months was burned at the stake and another snatched from a hospital bed.

In an appeal to the churches, the statement further says: "The Federal Council of the Churches calls upon church people of all denominations and creeds to rise in the might of public protest against these outrages and [illegible] to exercise their direct influence upon national, state and local officials, in order that every citizen, however [illegible] and of whatever color, may be safe and secure and law and order may be strengthened. Shall we repeat the record of the past five years or shall we abolish mob murder? Jesus Christ and the mob spirit cannot live together in the same land.

"During the past six years, the Federal Council of the Churches, through its commission on race relations, has issued an honor roll of states free from lynching based upon careful records of this evil. We have noted with satisfaction the increasing number of states free from it and the gradual decrease in the number of victims. In 1927, there were 41 states without a recorded [illegible] lynching—the largest [illegible] so free in the history [illegible]

CONFERENCE OF CATHOLICS SEES GAIN

A recent report of the Catholic Welfare Conference with headquarters in Washington, D. C., makes the following encouraging statement:

Union recognition, higher wages, co-operation between union and management and a wage differential are the chief features of a new contract in a part of the coal fields of Colorado. A woman, Miss Josephine Roche, is responsible for it in the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company whose policy she took control of about a year ago.

The chief features of the contract are:

1. An increase in the basic daily wage from $6.77 to $7.00.
2. A differential of 23 cents per day in wages to be maintained above non-union miners, in recognition of the increased efficiency of union labor.
3. A detailed plan of adjusting differences, settling grievances and preventing strikes.
4. A department of medicine and sanitation to replace the old "company doctor" scheme.

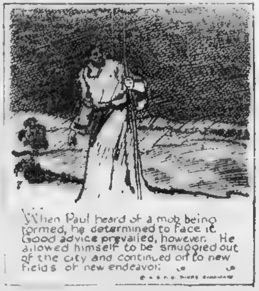
In Ephesus there dwelt a seller of images, named Demetrius. Because of Paul's preaching of Christianity, the sale of idols was greatly affected. Demetrius called together friends in the same business, and they formed a mob to attack Paul.



When Paul heard of a mob being formed, he determined to face it. Good advice prevailed, however. He allowed himself to be smuggled out of the city and continued on to new fields of new endeavor.

Memory of a Kiss Given Long Ago Returned to Him

[illegible]

She gave him a dazzling look, her eyes [illegible] with light, and was into the saddle in a bound, cantering away, [illegible] backward, "Coming?" she called softly. "Are you coming, Benny Black?"

He followed [illegible] all the old [illegible] — what was Diana Ba[illegible] — abandon of that moment back there [illegible] her [illegible] All in a breath so—was this surrender?

And did he want this? Ah, well, [illegible] been [illegible] not [illegible]

[illegible] thought of her as the one beautiful love, to have made of their association a holy thing set apart from [illegible] such as the world knew.

He Could Not Know That This Was Surrender

He gave no thought, of course to inexperience, to the heavy passion of first love. He could not know that to Diana this indeed was surrender, but only to the greatest of all things as she understood it—a love which must be enduring and sacred.

She was so sure of it, so joyous, that in the end she slipped out of his arms without hesitation, saying they must go. And when he caught her to him again, a most roughly, she [illegible] could do no [illegible] days to come—[illegible] years—how marvelous life [illegible]

T[illegible] rode back into camp, Diana [illegible] Benny [illegible] and white. And the crowd greeted them noisily, w[illegible] Ann catching her mother's look of fury—a look she returned.

Diana went to her room, buzzed Bea [illegible] murmuring "So happy—[illegible]" while her friend helped her off with the riding boots.

I'm in love again and my heart strings are thrumming—
I'm in love again—"

T[illegible] sang Diana. And Bea asked, "Is it Ben?" Seeing the flame in the gray eyes, she added fervently, "Thank God you'll marry the first man you love—"

"Oh, Bea, darling! You see 'nobody asked me, sir, she said.'"

"But he will, Di, tonight. You'll see——"

The boots were off at least and the knickers and shirt changed for a slip of a dress, when Diana said that now they must break the news. And when Beatrice cringed she laughed again, declaring that nobody could do anything to stop what already had happened.

They went to the veranda, Diana holding up her hand for silence, crying to everybody to make ready for a jolt.

"I have to announce," she began with mock pompousness, "the marriage this morning at North Lake village of Miss Beatrice Sheldon and Mr. Norman Gregory. You all may kiss the bride and shake the bridegroom's paw. Line will form at the right—walk, don't run—and watch your step, please."

A moment of startled silence—a whoop—and the crowd fell upon the pair. In the excitement nobody saw Ann steal away to her room. And the few moments Hanna devoted to hysteria she later explained as due to nervousness.

"What dear Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon will think of me!" she [illegible]

Yet she regained her [illegible] together with a new hope. Marriage was in the air, and perhaps, even though the week had come to nothing, these last few [illegible] held a promise. If only Ann were not so stupid and Benny Black so wary!

She left the chattering group and found her daughter. And things were said between them which were to turn like poisoned blades in the memory of mother and daughter as long as each of them should live.

Martha Lee Tells of Finer Flavors

By MARTHA LEE

MORE years ago than I care to remember, the first peanut butter in captivity, I believe, was sampled at the boarding school I attended. It was looked upon as something odd, queer, and mysterious. Today, however, in thousands of homes peanut butter is eaten as a delicious, nourishing and economical food.

Food experts again and again have demonstrated how much solid nourishment it contains and today most of us know that a peanut butter sandwich contains the same amount of strength, heat and energy as a glass of rich milk.

Many women have realized that the irresistible flavor which makes such delicious sandwiches could be used to advantage in other dishes and so through home makers and food cookery experts have come many delicious uses for this wholesome food product.

First a word about the sandwiches. Fine close-grained bread cuts in thinner, neater slices and a good sized loaf is preferable so that there will be less waste. White, brown, rye, graham, whole wheat or raisin bread may be used, or to give variety two kinds together.

First spread your sandwiches with sweet, fresh butter which has been thoroughly creamed with a fork. This not only adds palatability, but prevents the filling from soaking into the bread. Spread the filling on the buttered surface of one slice only and have the filling come well to the edge of the bread.

The peanut butter will spread easier if it is creamed first with a little dairy butter, using one tablespoon of dairy butter to a small jar of peanut butter.

Dainty and unusual afternoon tea sandwiches are made by cutting very thin rather fresh bread that will roll without crumbling. Remove the crust, spread with the creamed butter and peanut butter and sprinkle with maple sugar. Starting at one corner, roll as tightly as possible without breaking the bread, fasten with a toothpick and serve with afternoon tea.

Olives and crisp, tender celery chopped fine and moistened with a little salad dressing combine nicely with white or rye bread, buttered and spread with a layer of peanut butter. Other good peanut butter combinations are banana; shredded and sugared pineapple; tart apple chopped fine and moistened with mayonnaise; chopped prunes, or candied fruits; peanut butter, tomato and lettuce; peanut butter, cream cheese and currant jelly.

Economical and easy hors d'oeuvres are made by filling the crisp inner stalks of celery with peanut butter moistened with a little thick cream. The stalks are arranged on crisp lettuce leaves.

Peanut Butter Drop Cakes—¼ c. butter, ½ c. sugar, ¼ c. milk, 2 eggs, 1 c. flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, ½ c. peanut butter, 1 tsp. vanilla.

Cream butter and peanut butter, add sugar, beaten egg yolks, milk, sifted flour and baking powder, whites of eggs, beaten stiff. Drop in small spoonfuls on greased baking sheets, one or two inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven to a delicate brown.

Peanut Butter Cream Soup—1 qt. milk, 1 small onion grated, 1 tbsp. flour, level, 1 tbsp. butter, 1 c. peanut butter, 1 bay leaf, 3 stalks celery, chopped, 1 saltspoon celery salt, ½ tsp. salt, a little white pepper, dash paprika.

Heat milk in a double boiler, add peanut butter, onion, bay leaf, chopped celery and other seasonings. While the milk is heating, melt butter in a separate saucepan, stirring in flour as for cream sauce. When smooth add the hot milk, after straining through a sieve. Serve at once with croutons.

Peanut Butter Fudge—2 c. sugar, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1 c. milk, 1 tbsp. butter, 4 tbsps. cocoa, ½ large jar peanut butter.

Mix the sugar, cocoa and butter, add the milk very slowly, beating until smooth. Boil 15 minutes or until a spoonful dropped in cold water forms a soft ball that can be lifted from the cup without dissolving. Remove from fire, add vanilla and peanut butter, beat until creamy. Pour on buttered pan and cut in squares.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

GO to the Paris Widow, thou simple one! Consider her ways and be thoughtful.

For a real widow may be sad of heart; but a little divorcee is a cheerful loser. Verily, verily, she passeth lightly over the Great Divide into the Happy Hunting Grounds; for she carryeth with her all the charms of widowhood and none of its regrets.

Her "past" is as a sealed verdict which arouseth a man's curiosity and her future is a fascinating adventure in an unknown country.

She confideth her "troubles" unto each man and sigheth for "sympathy." A tear trembleth in her right eye, while a wink twinkleth in her left.

She appealeth unto a man's chivalry, she getteth upon his easy side, she awakeneth his protective instinct.

She is SO helpless! And abused!

And lo, every man's heart is her phonograph, whereon she playeth whatsoever tune she listeth.

What though she hath made one or TWO men miserable? Still, will a third and a fourth cheerfully follow in their footsteps, nor fear the briars and quicksands.

For, men are as a flock of goats. Where one leadeth the others hasten to follow. And it doth appear that to make all men eager to marry thee thou must first have made ONE man sorry.

Verily, unto her that hath HAD many husbands shall be given, even as unto Peggy Joyce!

* * *

Behold, a spinster is an unknown quantity and a widow is an heirloom; but a multiple divorcee is a hand-me-down. Yet, even as a babe delighteth to play with scissors and with matches, so does a man delight to pass a "danger" signal and to wager his happiness on a long shot.

* * *

Go to. A woman may divorce ONE husband for a good reason. But she that divorceth many husbands is an ADDICT!

* * *

For surely, surely in the Garden of Love not ALL the fruit are lemons! And, peradventure, an husband is no better and no worse than other men.

Wherefore, then, do men seem always to prefer the food and the woman which will most disagree with them? Even one whose heart is like unto a barber shop in which the cry is always "NEXT!"

DON'T BE A CRY-BABY

By CONSTANCE CAMERON.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD Rose-Ann came running home, sobbing, sniffling and apparently broken-hearted. The group of little playmates had chosen someone else to be the mother while they played house, and Rose-Ann was sure in her small heart that she should have had that post of honor and that the other children didn't like her or they would most surely have accorded it to her. Her under-lip quivered and her self-pity churned up quite a few gusty sobs and hot tears, and home she went—as usual. Rose-Ann never stayed the entire afternoon when she went to play anywhere. She always left the party voluntarily and in tears, to the accompanying shouts of "Cry baby! Cry-baby."

All of her short life, this child had felt sorry for herself. Perhaps it started when her mother ran to her upon her first fall with its accompanying head-bump, and cuddled and cooed over her, kissed her and sympathized with her, meantime encouraging the tears and howls of Rose-Ann.

At any rate it began at an early age, and continued as she grew older, and Rose-Ann bids fair to to become a girl who weeps and refuses to attend a party if her playmate is known to have a new dress for the occasion and she has not; and later the mother who sighs, with mouth drawn down at the corners, denying herself things she could just as well have, watches her children have a good time while she sits at home, martyrlike. And it will be a shame to have this beautiful little girl follow this inclination when there is so much that is attractive in her nature, but which is being rapidly submerged by the cry-baby habit.

If your child whines and tears are ready to gush forth when his wishes are denied, try withholding what he desires until he can be philosophical and good-natured about it. Make smiles and a "give-and-take" spirit bring the reward instead of tears, and you will have a good start toward dislodging this pernicious habit.

To let the habit go unchecked may bring serious consequences, child psychologists tell us. The person who is easily hurt, too sensitive and ready to believe everyone is discriminating against him is in line to become a being who will slide easily into criminal pursuits under the delusion that the world is against him and that he has a right to take what he pleases from those who have it and he has not!

Don't let your child be a cry-baby. Infant or adult cry-babies are always unpopular. We all have our unpleasant experiences, and when one enters the life of your youngster help him to face it, solve it if possible, or figure why it occurred, so that it may be avoided in the future, then forget it. Make him know that he isn't the only being who ever planned to go on a picnic only to have it rain that day, or that he is not the only child who has ever had to see the boy across the road have a working cart when he can't. If possible suggest ways wherein the child may through his own efforts, gain what he wants. Make his reactions to disappointment or envy turn into a constructive desire to find out how he can gain his heart's desire, providing, of course, that his desire is right and fitting.

ONCE-OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

HAVE you heard of the little Chinese girl who cried because she found out that all Americans are not Christians?

If Christianity is such a good thing that missionaries came so far to tell them about it in far away China, she could not understand how it is that each and every one in this country has not embraced the Christian faith.

But isn't it true that we often lose sight of the fact that charity begins at home?

Workers think of distance as desirable in choosing their point of production.

Students go far to schools and colleges to learn facts that have been told them again and again at home.

The prophet in his own country is not worth listening to but others outside are impressed and a large following grows up.

Why don't you take stock of the good things you can find around near your own home, before you say that all the worthwhile things are to be found at a distance?

INTERESTING POLITICAL DOCUMENT COMES TO LIGHT

(From the Bonne Terre, Missouri, Star-News-Register)

Dear Voter:

I am a candidate for Constable on the Democratic ticket.

I worked for twelve years for the Lead Co. and was let out on account of the closing of the steam plant where I was oiler. I was forced to go into some kind of business to earn my living. My first venture was the tailoring business but, not being a merchant tailor, I was forced to abandon it.

Thru the aid of friends, I entered the pool room business, then came the war and, as you know, the young men are the support of the pool room. I quit the game and entered the grocery business, but lost everything.

Having tried to make an honest living for my large family I will admit that I broke some of the man made laws in order to make a living for them, but if you will investigate me you will find that I was a square shooter.

These laws I will strictly enforce—Men who are foolish enough to drink until they are drunk should be kept off of our streets. There is a class of women who play our city for money. I promise to keep them out of our city.

I think with my experience with the good and the bad of this town, I will be able to suppress most of the evils of our city. If elected, I will make you one of the best Constables our city ever had.

TRADE IS IMPROVING, SAYS PRESIDENT HERR

Trade conditions are improving in the United States, according to E. M. Herr, president of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. He said: "This is in striking contrast with the lagging tendency noted in most lines of industry a year ago and forecasts a generally prosperous last half-year.

"It is true that coal, textile and railroad equipment industries have witnessed a decline in volume that is probably more marked than in other activities," he continued. "However, reports of abundant crops from farming sections of the West are very encouraging and it will not be long before our industrial world will be greatly benefited from this condition."
